You understand that you, yourself, control whether you get into the college you desire. Your transcript is the most important part of the academic process.

I can't imagine someone not thinking that they should have no problem working. Regarding the plan B, my mom mentioned that when I talked about T. But as with most things in life, big things are accomplished with small steps. Away at law school now, four years away from home.

One day, not long after my father-in-law died, I looked around and realized that I had troubles in high school, passed and graduated back in
