And that Angora rabbit; much better than the ordinary rabbits. For no apparent reason I got obsessed with Scotland and am reading the entire Inspector Rebus series of books. Most the time it's caused by paint drying up near the ferrule. I am torn between making art for myself and trying to make art that is marketable. An ancient technique using modern materials and bright colors to put some pizzazz into this Dahlia. Is there a problem here? I lay down on the bed, close my eyes and I sink into the feeling I am having at the time. I am under the gun to make good use of the time I have with the books. After too much planning and not enough painting I get a little fidgety and even a little bad tempered at my lack of progress in the studio.
